PREFACE.

THIS Catalogue has been prepared by the LADIES' COMMISSION ON SUNDAY-SCHOOL BOOKS for two different objects, as indicated by its title. While our public libraries afford great facilities to any one familiar with books, there are in every community young persons who, having finished their school education, are desirous of enlarging their acquaintance with general literature, but who find themselves without competent or judicious friends to aid them in the selection of the books best suited to their wants. It is partly to furnish this help that the list has been prepared, in the hope that it will facilitate the use of larger catalogues, induce a more constant recourse to the libraries, and suggest what is best worth reading on any subject when an exhaustive study is not intended. In the departments of History, Biography, and Science, those works suited for a more extended course of reading are marked by an asterisk. In so small a list, it was obviously necessary to make a selection from the works of the more voluminous novelists, and a choice has therefore been made of the books considered, upon the whole, best suited to the purpose.

Although prepared by a distinctly Unitarian organization, the list is of a wholly unsectarian character, and therefore recommends no theological works whatever.

Beside the purpose which has been mainly regarded by the Commission, they have had in view another want often brought to their notice by the request to prepare a catalogue of books for the use of corporations and individuals in the collection of small libraries. It is hoped that this list will be found to meet the demand, and that its subdivisions will make the selection of a small but well proportioned library an easy task.
